

ATTORNEY MCBRIDE SECURES DISMISSAL OF CLIENT FROM CLASS ACTION

On May 20, 2010, the Wisconsin Court of Appeals affirmed a lower court ruling dismissing Nissan Motor Co., Ltd. (“Nissan Japan”) from a price-fixing class action venued in Milwaukee County for lack of personal jurisdiction under Wisconsin’s long-arm statute, Wis. Stat. § 801.05. The class action involved anti-trust claims against various automobile manufacturers and their North American subsidiaries for allegedly conspiring to maintain new car prices in the United States at levels higher than in Canada for the same vehicles and as part of the conspiracy, further arranged for the United States dealers not to honor warranties on cars imported from Canada. The plaintiff claimed that the circuit court had jurisdiction over Nissan Japan because it had “directly or through [its] subsidiaries, affiliates or agents” conducted business in Wisconsin through Nissan dealerships located in the state.

After a period of jurisdictional discovery, the circuit court determined that Wisconsin did not have personal jurisdiction over Nissan Japan and that exercising jurisdiction over the foreign corporation would violate Due Process. The court of appeals affirmed the dismissal of Nissan Japan, agreeing with Attorney McBride’s argument that the foreign corporation was not subject to general jurisdiction under Wisconsin law based solely on the acts of its wholly owned subsidiary, Nissan North America, under an agency theory. Similarly, the court of appeals also determined that specific jurisdiction over Nissan Japan was not warranted under the long-arm statute, where there was no evidence in the record that the class action arose out of an injury to persons or property in Wisconsin based on an out-of-state action by Nissan Japan.

The court of appeals further rejected an alternative argument advanced by the plaintiff related to the scope of jurisdictional discovery conducted prior to the circuit court’s dismissal of Nissan Japan, holding that the plaintiff was not denied his right to an evidentiary hearing when the circuit court ordered the plaintiff to direct his jurisdictional discovery requests to Nissan North American rather than Nissan Japan. The parties had entered into a series of stipulations related to jurisdictional facts and the plaintiff had stated that he did not seek any further discovery from Nissan Japan.

ATTORNEY MCBRIDE SECURES APPELLATE COURT VICTORY

On May 4, 2010, the Wisconsin Court of Appeals affirmed a lower court ruling dismissing a series of claims against the defendants for lack of personal jurisdiction under Wisconsin's long-arm statute, Wis. Stat. § 801.05 and held that, as Attorney McBride had argued, personal jurisdiction over the corporation cannot be the sole basis for personal jurisdiction over an officer. Attorney McBride's argument enabled the appellate court to differentiate between the business contacts of the corporation with Wisconsin and the lack of specific contacts within the state by the individual defendants, former officers of the corporation.

While the appellate court noted that the business contacts of the corporation in Wisconsin were sufficient to impose jurisdiction over the corporation, it agreed with Attorney McBride's argument that the individual defendant's work on behalf of the corporation, all performed outside Wisconsin, was not sufficient to constitute "substantial and not isolated activities within this state" sufficient to impose personal jurisdiction over the former officers. As a result, the court of appeals determined that the exercise of personal jurisdiction over the individual defendants was not permissible under the long-arm statute.

PETER WALSH WRITES AND SPEAKS ON SPECIALIZED ESTATE PLANNING TECHNIQUE

Attorney Peter Walsh of O'Neil, Cannon, Hollman, DeJong & Laing S.C., has recently published an article and is a frequent speaker on the topic of formula adjustment clauses in estate planning to mitigate the valuation risk inherent in the gift of hard to value assets. Such hard to value assets include closely held business interests and real estate. The risk sought to be reduced by this technique is that of substantial additional gift tax plus interest resulting from an increase to the value of a gifted assets through an IRS audit. For example, a gift of hard to value stock in the family business in 2008 could result in additional gift tax plus interest in 2010, if the IRS successfully challenges the value of the gifted stock. Estate planners have employed various means to mitigate this valuation risk.

In two recent taxpayer victories, the Tax Court gave its blessing to the evolving use of formula adjustment clauses to eliminate the valuation risk. For instance, the Tax Court, in Estate of Petter, allowed a taxpayer to avoid substantial gift tax through a "charitable cap adjustment clause" which allocated any increase in value to public charities. When the taxpayer in Petter conceded to an IRS demand for a substantial increase in the value of property given as a gift, the taxpayer was able to avoid additional gift tax through the adjustment clause that allocated the entire increase to donor advised funds offered by public charities. In this manner, the taxpayer traded a taxable gift for a charitable deduction.

Peter's article on this subject titled "Formula Clause Changes Taxable Gift into Charitable Donation," appeared in the April issue of the national tax magazine Practical Tax Strategies. Peter presented a seminar on this subject to the Milwaukee Estate Planning Forum, LTD, on May 5, 2010, and will present at the Milwaukee Bar Association, on May 20, 2010. WISCONSIN INCREASES THE HOMESTEAD EXEMPTION AVAILABLE TO ALL RESIDENTS

Under Wisconsin law, a person's "homestead" is the dwelling and so much of the land surrounding it necessary for use as a home, not exceeding 40 acres. An individual resident is generally entitled to exempt his or her homestead from execution of a judgment, from the lien of a judgment, and from liability for his or her personal debts up to the amount designated by the Wisconsin Statutes.

Formerly, this amount equaled $40,000.00 per resident. On December 1, 2009, however, the Wisconsin Legislature increased the exemption to which each resident is entitled to $75,000.00. Additionally, the Legislature lifted its limitation of a $40,000.00 homestead exemption per household (the "Marriage Penalty"), now allowing spouses to pool their exemptions and collectively claim a $150,000.00 exemption. Unchanged are certain exceptions unaffected by the homestead exemption such as mortgages, laborers', mechanics', and purchase money liens and taxes recorded against the homestead property.
