

TAX AND WEALTH ADVISOR ALERT: CHARITABLE REMAINDER TRUSTS, A DYNAMIC ESTATE PLANNING TOOL TO REDUCE TAXES AND DO GOOD

Charitable Remainder Trusts (CRTs) are a powerful tool for those looking to support their favorite causes while also securing a steady income stream for themselves or their loved ones. These trusts are essentially a way to give cash or other property to an irrevocable trust, with the donor receiving an income stream for a set term of years or for life, while the remaining assets go to the named charity at the end of the trust term.

One of the biggest benefits of CRTs is the immediate income tax charitable deduction that donors receive when they fund the trust. This deduction is based on the present value of the assets that will eventually go to the charity and can be a significant reduction in the donor's overall tax burden.

Another great feature of CRTs is that they can be structured to defer the payment stream, making them an effective income stream during retirement. Additionally, donors can couple a CRT with a Donor-Advised Fund \(DAF\) to have even more control over how their charitable dollars are invested and distributed.

For donors with highly appreciated assets, CRTs are an excellent way to defer capital gains taxes. When appreciated property is contributed to a CRT, the capital gains tax is deferred until the time that it is distributed out to the income beneficiary, allowing the donor to diversify their position in a tax-effective manner.

Funds or property contributed to a CRT may be removed from the donor's estate for estate tax purposes which may reduce estate taxes in some cases. However, there may be gift tax consequences if the donor names a non-spouse non-charitable beneficiary to receive the income from the CRT.

It's important to note that with a CRT, the individual recipient of the distributions from the CRT during the term of the CRT must pay tax on such distributions, and it is categorized into four tiers: (1) income and dividends; (2) capital gains; (3) tax-exempt income; and (4) return of principal.

In summary, CRTs coupled with a DAF can be a great option for donors seeking a current or future income stream. It is recommended that clients work with a qualified estate planning attorney to confirm that a CRT will provide the expected results from a tax and administration perspective.

TAX AND WEALTH ADVISOR ALERT: DONOR-ADVISED FUNDS, A GREAT WAY TO DO CHARITABLE GIVING

Donor-advised funds, or DAFs, are a popular way for individuals to support charitable organizations they care about while also receiving potential tax benefits. A DAF is essentially a charitable investment account that allows individuals to make a tax-deductible donation and then invest those account funds for tax-free growth. The individual can then recommend grants to virtually any IRS-qualified public charity.

Creating a DAF is simple and straightforward. First, an individual must establish a “giving account” with a public charity. Many financial institutions and community foundations may also be the sponsoring organizations of these accounts. Second, the individual must make a donation of cash, securities, or other assets to the giving account. This donation is generally eligible for an immediate tax deduction. Finally, the funds in the giving account can then be invested for tax-free growth.

One of the benefits of a DAF is that it allows individuals to see their donation grow over time. Most sponsoring organizations offer a variety of investment options for the charitable dollars in the giving account. This means that individuals can choose an investment strategy that aligns with their goals and risk tolerance.

Another benefit of a DAF is that individuals can support virtually any IRS-qualified public charity with grant recommendations from the account. This includes local homeless shelters, alma maters, religious institutions, and more. The public charity sponsoring the account will conduct due diligence to ensure that the funds are used for charitable purposes.

In conclusion, DAFs are a great way to support charities you care about while also receiving tax benefits. They are easy to set up, offer tax-free growth, and give you the flexibility to support virtually any IRS-qualified public charity at a pace that is comfortable for you. If you are looking for a way to make a meaningful impact on the causes you care about, a DAF may be an excellent option for you.

TAX AND WEALTH ADVISOR ALERT: QUALIFIED PERSONAL RESIDENCE TRUSTS - A PLANNING TECHNIQUE TO SAVE THE FAMILY HOME FROM ESTATE TAXES

A Qualified Personal Residence Trust (QPRT) allows a homeowner to transfer their personal residence to a trust for a specified period of time, after which the residence is transferred back to the homeowner or to a designated beneficiary. QPRTs are often used as a tax-saving strategy for homeowners who want to reduce the value of their estate for estate tax purposes.

One of the main benefits of a QPRT is the ability to remove the value of a personal residence from the homeowner's estate. By transferring the residence to a trust for a specified period of time, the homeowner is able to reduce the value of their estate and, as a result, reduce the amount of estate taxes that will be due upon their death.

Another benefit of a QPRT is the ability to maintain the use of the residence during the term of the trust. The homeowner can continue to live in the residence and pay a reduced rent to the trust for the use of the residence. This allows the homeowner to continue to enjoy the residence while also reducing the value of their estate. QPRTs are subject to certain rules and limitations, such as a requirement that the term of the trust cannot exceed the life expectancy of the homeowner and that the fair market rent must be paid to the trust for the use of the residence.

Overall, a QPRT can be a useful tool for homeowners looking to reduce the value of their estate for estate tax purposes while also maintaining the use of their personal residence.

TAX AND WEALTH ADVISOR ALERT: IRREVOCABLE LIFE INSURANCE TRUST, A TECHNIQUE TO ELIMINATE ESTATE TAXES ON LIFE INSURANCE PROCEEDS AND TO PROVIDE LIQUIDITY TO AN ESTATE PLAN

An Irrevocable Life Insurance Trust (ILIT) is a special kind of trust that is designed to own life insurance. The key characteristic of an ILIT is that it is irrevocable, meaning that it cannot be changed or dissolved once it is created. This characteristic is important because it allows the trust assets to be removed from the estate of the person who creates it, which can help to reduce estate taxes.

An ILIT requires at least one trustee to manage the trust and a beneficiary to receive the proceeds of the life insurance policy. The person who creates the trust, known as the grantor, will typically transfer a life insurance policy into the trust and pay the premiums on the policy. The beneficiary of the trust is typically the family of the grantor.

One of the main benefits of an ILIT is that the proceeds from the life insurance policy are not subject to estate taxes. This can help to reduce the overall tax burden on one's estate and ensure that more of the assets are passed on to one's intended beneficiaries.

Another benefit of an ILIT is that it can provide a source of liquidity for one's estate. The proceeds from the life insurance policy can be used to pay any outstanding debts, taxes, or other expenses that may arise after the grantor's death.

In order for an ILIT to be effective, it is important that the grantor does not retain any incidents of ownership over the life insurance policy. This includes foregoing the rights to change the beneficiary, borrow against the policy, or cancel the policy. If the grantor retains any of these rights, the life insurance policy will be considered part of the grantor's estate and subject to estate taxes.

In summary, an ILIT is a type of trust that is used to hold a life insurance policy and can help to reduce estate taxes by removing the policy from the grantor's estate. It requires a trustee to manage the trust and a beneficiary to receive the proceeds of the life insurance policy, and it can provide a source of liquidity for the estate. It is important to keep in mind that the grantor should not retain any incidents of ownership over the life insurance policy for the ILIT to be effective.

SPOUSAL LIFETIME ACCESS TRUSTS, A POWERFUL ESTATE PLANNING TOOL FOR COMPLEX ESTATES

The Spousal Lifetime Access Trust (SLAT) is a type of irrevocable trust that allows married couples to transfer assets to their spouse and other family members while removing those assets from their combined estates. This type of trust can help high net worth individuals take advantage of the federal lifetime gift and estate tax exclusion, which is currently $12.92 million per person in 2023, or $25.84 million per married couple, while still retaining limited access to the assets, if needed.

A SLAT is created by one spouse (the “donor” spouse) gifting property to an irrevocable trust for the benefit of the other spouse (the “non-donor” spouse). The non-donor spouse is the primary beneficiary of the trust and can request distributions from the trustee, if needed, during their lifetime. However, most advisors recommend that the non-donor spouse not request distributions from the SLAT unless it is absolutely necessary to maintain their accustomed standard of living.

The donor’s transfer of assets to the SLAT is considered a taxable gift, but gift tax may not be owed if the donor utilizes their Federal gift and estate tax exclusion. The assets and any future appreciation is removed from the donor’s taxable estate and the trust is excluded from the non-donor’s taxable estate as well.

A SLAT can offer many benefits such as:

- Allows married couples to reduce the size of their estate while retaining limited access to the assets.
- Allows the donor to indirectly benefit from the property gifted to the trust, as long as the non-donor spouse is living and remains married to the donor.
- The non-donor spouse can request distributions from the trustee of the trust to maintain their accustomed standard of living.
- Appreciation of the assets outside the donor’s estate for the benefit of their descendants.

SLATs are a sophisticated estate planning tool and should be created with the assistance of a qualified attorney. They can provide significant benefits to married couples looking to transfer wealth to the next generation while still retaining access to the assets.

TAX AND WEALTH ADVISOR ALERT: IRS POSTPONES $600 PAYMENT PROCESSOR 1099-K REPORTING REQUIREMENT

In a year-end gift of sorts to tax professionals, payment processing companies, and individuals pursuing eBay and other small-transaction side hustles, the IRS has delayed a new transaction reporting requirement that some believed would cause confusion among taxpayers and tax preparers alike.

Many More Payments Were to Be Reported to the IRS

The new reporting requirement would have required companies such as Venmo, PayPal, eBay, and Etsy that process business-related payments to provide each individual who received more than a total of $600 in reportable transaction payments from the company in 2022 with a form 1099-K and to report those payments to the IRS. Formerly the 1099-K reporting requirement was not triggered unless an individual received more than $20,000 in reportable payments in more than 200 transactions in a calendar or tax year.

So, for example, if an eBay seller earned more than $600 from eBay auctions in 2022, eBay would have been required to report that total to the IRS and to send the seller a form 1099-K reflecting those payments. This would be the case for any payment processor that made payments to individuals or businesses for business-related transactions (StubHub, Etsy, Airbnb, Venmo, Zelle, Square, and the like). In each case, if any one individual or company was paid more than $600 for business-related transactions in 2022, the payment processor would have been required to report the total amount paid to the IRS, and the recipient of the payments would receive a form 1099-K reflecting that total.

Concerns About Errors and Confusion

There was widespread concern that given the lower reporting threshold of $600 per year, many individual taxpayers would receive erroneous 1099-Ks that mistakenly included non-reportable transactions. A Venmo payment for splitting dinner checks with a friend is one example. Only properly reportable transactions, such as payments for business-related products or services, should trigger a 1099-K, and the risk of error with the lower threshold was significant. Of course, those erroneous amounts would also have been reported to the IRS, creating headaches for taxpayers, tax preparers, and the IRS.

The IRS Has Delayed the New Reporting Requirement

In late December 2022, the IRS issued a notice delaying the implementation of the $600 threshold for the 1099-K reporting requirement until 2023, meaning taxpayers should not be receiving 1099-Ks from payment processors such as eBay and PayPal unless the old $20,000/200-transaction threshold was reached during the year.

This does not mean taxpayers are not required to declare all their 2022 income, of course. It simply means that if a taxpayer's transactions for the year were under the $20,000/200-transaction threshold, payments won't be reported to the IRS by the payment processors and the taxpayers won't receive a form 1099-K for amounts they've received.

Be Prepared for 2023

Note that the IRS is not abandoning the new $600 reporting requirement; it's simply giving payment processors, tax professionals, and taxpayers another year to ensure they are prepared to implement it. This means that if you're a taxpayer and you receive payments from online transactions such as eBay, Etsy, StubHub, or Airbnb, or if you have clients pay you via Venmo or Paypal, it's essential for you to keep track of the money you receive via these payment processing services. You should also make sure you pay close attention to non-business payments you receive from friends and family when you split a dinner check or share a weekend cabin rental.

Keep track of expenses you incur related to the reportable payments you receive - for example, if you buy and resell concert tickets, the cost of the original ticket you purchased is an expense related to the money you receive from selling the ticket. Doing so will usually reduce your reportable income. And the more you keep good records, the easier it will be to ensure that any 1099-K forms you receive for 2023 payments are accurate and properly reflect the money you've been paid for goods or services you provided.

Note That Things May Change

The new $600 threshold for 1099-K reporting provoked a predictable backlash from the payment processing industry. Some members have formed an advocacy group called the Coalition for 1099-K Fairness to draw attention to the new requirement and encourage the IRS to, at a minimum, delay its implementation. With the IRS's decision in late 2022 to postpone enforcement of the new rule for a year, at least one of this group's requests has been met (though the IRS did not specifically reference the Coalition when it issued its notice).

According to a survey conducted on behalf of the Coalition, millions of what they call "casual sellers" make less than $5,000 per year selling used or pre-owned goods online. For most of these people, the Coalition argues that selling things online is not their primary source of income; think "side-gig." One industry concern is that if millions of people start receiving 1099-K forms for casual transactions, many may stop selling online to avoid the hassle of keeping records of revenues and expenses as though they are operating a full-fledged business.

On the other side is the idea that even "casual sellers" should include their income from smaller-scale transactions on their tax returns. And the thought is that if taxpayers are aware that the revenue they receive from these casual sales is being reported to the IRS, they will be more inclined to include it (or the portion that is properly reportable as income) on their tax returns.

That said, there is no dispute that the new $600 reporting threshold is a drastic change from the old $20,000/200-transaction threshold, and that complying with the new 1099-K reporting requirement will be significantly more burdensome for payment processors of all types. While the $600 threshold may be changed in response to industry and taxpayer pressure, there is no guarantee this will happen, so payment processors and taxpayers should continue to act as though the threshold will remain where it is for 2023.

HOME FOR THE HOLIDAYS: GIVE THE GIFT OF LEGAL PLANNING FOR YOUR COLLEGE STUDENT

In the summer flurry of packing and planning to transition their high school student to college life, many parents overlook the legal documents that can help families in the event of a student's financial or health emergency. As many parents learn the hard way when their child suffers a physical or mental health crisis, the law generally prohibits a hospital or medical provider from sharing information about their adult child without their child's consent regardless of whether the child is covered under their health insurance or a dependent for tax purposes. Similarly, while parents can deposit money into their child's checking account, they do not have the ability to act on their adult child's behalf to manage other aspects of his or her financial life. A few simple documents can help families as their teens transition to adulthood.

HIPAA Release and Authorization

HIPAA normally prohibits a medical provider from giving information about a patient to anyone without the patient's consent. A HIPAA release and authorization allows medical professionals to divulge medical records to an individual's personal representative under HIPAA. Students can name one or both of their parents as individuals authorized to obtain such information.

Power of Attorney for Health Care

A power of attorney for health care allows a person to appoint someone to make health care decisions for them if they are unable to do so. The power of attorney does not override or supplant the individual's wishes; it becomes effective only when (i) two physicians or (ii) a physician and a psychologist, nurse practitioner, or physician assistant determine that the individual is incapacitated. Only one person can be given power of attorney for health care at a time and that person should be aware of the individual's desires and beliefs concerning treatment.

Durable Power of Attorney

A durable power of attorney allows a person to appoint someone to oversee their financial affairs. These powers can be either immediate or effective only in the event of incompetence. For a college student, an immediate durable power of attorney would permit his or her parent to act on the student's financial behalf to the extent the power permits. This power can be broad and cover all accounts, including brokerage institutions, credit cards or banks, or limited to a specific financial institution.

O'Neil Cannon's Estate and Succession Planning Group can advise and assist your college student with these important documents.

TAX AND WEALTH ADVISOR ALERT: HOW JOINT ACCOUNTS CAN RUIN YOUR ESTATE PLAN

As individuals grow older, they are often inclined to add a child to their financial accounts to assist them with paying bills and managing assets. While this strategy is convenient, it can lead to financial abuse and can also derail estate plans.

A joint account is a financial account with one or more owners, who both have rights of survivorship. Upon the death of one owner, the balance of the account passes to the surviving owner without probate, regardless of whether the surviving owner contributed to the account or not. The balance of the account will not pass according to the deceased owner's estate plan and the surviving owner has no legal duty to abide by the deceased owner's estate plan. The surviving owner can legally liquidate the account and cannot be held liable for doing so.

If you mistakenly add a joint owner to your financial account, it can be extremely difficult to prove that the joint account was instead set up as a "convenience account" for the sole purpose of making it more "convenient" for the joint owner to pay your bills and manage your assets. To prove a joint account was a convenience account, the legal presumption that the surviving owner of the joint account should receive the balance of the account must be overturned. This proof relies heavily on factual circumstances and requires a showing of clear and convincing evidence that the original owner did not have a donative intent when initially creating the joint account.

Instead of adding an individual as a joint owner of your financial account, we recommend adding your agent under your financial power of attorney. A financial power of attorney allows a person to perform financial transactions on your behalf, without having any legal ownership over your financial accounts. More importantly, a financial power of attorney also terminates upon your death. In other words, when you pass away, the account will either pass to the beneficiary listed on your account or to your estate—as originally intended. If you already have a revocable trust in place, your revocable trust can be named as the beneficiary of the account and the account will then pass to your trust upon death, thus avoiding a probate proceeding.

It is important to note that while it is better to add an agent under a financial power of attorney to a financial account, a financial power of attorney can also be dangerous in the hands of a bad actor, and it can be difficult to hold an agent accountable. It is vital to choose a trustworthy agent, such as a spouse or close family member. Avoid selecting an agent who has a history of financial trouble, drug, or gambling problems. Always consult with an estate planning attorney when establishing a financial power of attorney and adding an agent to financial accounts.

Here at O’Neil Cannon, our Estate and Succession Planning Group can create a comprehensive estate plan for you and assist you with properly retitling your bank accounts, setting up beneficiary designations, and adding your agent under your financial power of attorney as an authorized user of your accounts. Our Inheritance Litigation Group can also assist you in holding a bad actor liable if you believe that your loved one’s joint account should be considered a convenience account or if your loved one was taken advantage of by his or her agent under a financial power of attorney.

TAX AND WEALTH ADVISOR ALERT: UNDERSTANDING COMMON NOTICES INDIVIDUALS RECEIVE FROM THE IRS

Although tax season may end for many individuals after returns are filed on April 15, for others it may be just the beginning. Many people receive a notice from the IRS as they process returns. These communications from the IRS are common and aren’t necessarily a sign of trouble. If you receive a notice, read it carefully, address it promptly, and consider whether you should contact a lawyer.

Most notices from the IRS are regarding incomplete or incorrect information on taxpayer's tax forms, but there are plenty of other reasons the agency might be contacting you. The IRS website notes that the IRS sends notices and letters to individuals for the following reasons:

- You are due money.
- You owe money.
- You need to provide additional information or clarify part of your tax return.
- You need to verify your identity.
- Your tax return has a processing delay.

Each notice or letter contains a lot of valuable information, so it is particularly important that you read it carefully. Any communication you receive from the IRS will have a code on the right side at either the top or the bottom. The codes on notices begin with CP. The codes on letters begin with LTR. Here are some common notices the IRS sends out, identified by code.

CP2000 Notice

The IRS sends taxpayers this notice when the information they have on file does not match the information provided on the tax return. There might need to be an adjustment to your tax forms.

For example, your employer originally sent you a W-2 with incorrect information. They later sent an amended W-2, but you used the incorrect W-2 when completing your taxes.

If the notice alerts you to a discrepancy in your tax filing, it will explain how the IRS determined the error. You can either agree and sign off on the proposed changes or explain why you disagree, including providing relevant documents. You typically will be given 30 days to respond.

CP3219A Notice

If you fail to resolve the issue highlighted by a CP2000 Notice, the IRS sends a CP3219A Notice. Known as the Statutory Notice of Deficiency, this form gives you 90 days to reply. Like a CP2000 Notice, you can either agree or disagree with the changes when you respond.

Failure to reply to this notification can bar your ability to appeal and contest the issue in Tax Court.

CP3219N Notice

When the IRS has not received your tax return, they will send you this notice. You have 90 days to reply. If you believe you did not have to file a return but receive this notice, you should contact the IRS.

CP501 Notice

The IRS sends this to remind taxpayers that they have 21 days to pay any outstanding tax. If you cannot pay what you still owe, you can see if you qualify for a payment plan.

CP501 Notices are generally the first notice sent. If you do not reply within 15 days, the IRS will then send a CP503 notice. If you receive a CP503 notice but believe you have resolved the issue, you should contact the IRS for confirmation.

If you fail to respond to this notice, the IRS can levy interest and penalties as well as file a Notice of a Federal Tax Lien. Like other notices, you can disagree with the IRS's calculations. You should be prepared to offer documentation to show their error.

CP14 Notice

This communication closely relates to CP501. It lets you know that the IRS believes you underpaid the amount due on your taxes.

Similar to a CP501 Notice, failure to respond in the required time period can result in additional penalties and accruing interest.

Timely Action

If you have received communication from the IRS, you should act promptly.

Failure to act in a timely manner can cause serious problems. Additional fees and interest can accrue on unpaid tax. If you disagree with the IRS's determinations, failure to reply may bar you from appealing the decision.

It is especially critical to respond to an IRS notice if you're unable to pay the full amount you owe on your taxes, because the agency may allow you to arrange a payment plan.

Beware of Scams

There are scammers out there who will send fake IRS letters and notices in an effort to obtain your personal information or even a check. Whenever you get a communication from the IRS, examine it carefully to make sure it is legitimate. If you are unsure, contact the IRS directly or reach out to a tax professional or attorney for guidance.

TAX AND WEALTH ADVISOR ALERT: HOW DOES LIFE INSURANCE WORK WITH AN ESTATE PLAN?

We must always expect the unexpected. We can be careful and prudent in our daily lives, but there are certain things that are out of our control, like death. In the event of your untimely death, are you able to provide ongoing support to your loved ones and important causes? By securing life insurance and establishing a comprehensive estate plan, you can help protect your family and loved ones and support your charitable causes after your death.

What is Life Insurance?

Life insurance is a contract with an insurance company that provides a sum of money to a designated person or entity upon the death of the insured person. Some policies also contain provisions that permit a payout upon a specific event, such as a terminal or critical illness. Buying life insurance is a common way for people to plan for the future of their families, loved ones, businesses, or other causes. It is important to understand what type of life insurance suits your needs.

What are the Different Types of Life Insurance?

There are two main types of life insurance that an individual can purchase: term life insurance and permanent life insurance.

- Term life insurance - This type of life insurance provides a death benefit upon the death of the covered insured during a specific, fixed period, often 1 to 30 years. The policy will pay out benefits to the designated beneficiary if the insured dies during the policy's term. Term life insurance is often purchased by individuals who want coverage for specific reasons in the event of their death, such as taking care of minor children or paying off a mortgage. Term life insurance is more affordable than permanent life insurance, as it only offers benefits for the term of the policy. If you have a small estate that is simple to manage, then term life insurance might be your best option.
- Permanent life insurance - This type of insurance provides a death benefit upon the death of the covered insured and a cash value that the covered insured may be able to access during their life. Common forms of permanent life insurance are whole life, universal life, variable life, and variable universal life insurance. Permanent life insurance is commonly purchased by individuals who have large estates that are complex to manage. While permanent life insurance is more expensive than term life insurance, its potential benefits can be much greater. If you have a special-need heir, large assets that are difficult to divide, or high estate taxes that will burden the beneficiary, then permanent life insurance might be your best option.

For both types of insurance, it is important to pay the premiums. With term life insurance, the policy typically lapses if you fail to pay a premium and your beneficiaries will obtain no benefit upon your death. With permanent life insurance, the contract may provide different choices if you fail to pay the premiums.

Make sure to work with an experienced estate planning attorney and your insurance agent to evaluate your situation and determine what type and level of insurance are best for you and your loved ones. Your current decisions can benefit future generations if you plan appropriately.

What are the Most Common Benefits of Having Life Insurance?

There are several important benefits that can be realized with the appropriate type and level of life insurance. Some of the most common benefits of life insurance include:

- Taking care of loved ones
- Maximizing wealth
- Paying off mortgages or other debts
- Securing a long-term legacy
- Protecting a business long-term
- Putting wealth into important causes
- Leaving a gift to charity

It is important to secure a policy that meets your long-term goals. Make sure you consider your choices so your plan is the best fit for you.

What is an Estate Plan?

Estate planning is the process of thinking about what will happen to your money, property, and other possessions after you die. Estate planning can determine how your affairs will be handled in the event that you become unable to care for yourself. Estate planning may also include planning for the long-term succession of a business. A goal of estate planning often is to minimize the amount of taxes and other expenses that arise upon death. Your personal goals and wishes should drive the type of estate plan you create. There are different mechanisms to develop a comprehensive estate plan, which can include:

- Will
- Trusts
- Powers of appointment
- Determination of property ownership and retitling of property
- Gifts
- Powers of attorney

A comprehensive estate plan should be tailored to your needs and your desires and should not be a cookie-cutter form document.

How Can Life Insurance Work with an Estate Plan?

The appropriate life insurance policy can be a significant part of your estate plan. Often, individuals simply designate a family member as the beneficiary of a life insurance policy without considering their overall estate planning goals. This can result in unintended consequences such as unequal distribution to beneficiaries or tax implications. Designating the right beneficiary on any insurance policy is important to achieve your estate planning goals.
